

Suddenly, a bomb happened. A bomb went off off. It destroyed many buildings in the area. The Statue of Liberty got demolished badly but the Empire State Building didn't get scratched. There were two kids called Helena and Bea. Helena and Bea were best friends but Helena wanted to risk her life and was walking to the eruption and on the other hand Bea was telling her not to risk her life.

"Hey" shouted Bea the intelligent one. She was trying to stop Helena. She was flabbergasted of the planets in the sky. There were many broken windows, fences and the sky was red. Bea was in a quicksand. Suddenly, she had to get out quickly out and stop her. She was sinking 0.1cm a second. She was only 1.45m. She didn't have long left. Helena was still going. Bea got out and started chasing her. Helena was almost there to fall in the lava. The electric wire came crashing down and Bea couldn't touch it or she could die. Bea ran like a sprinter and caught up and Helena started to cry because no one cared for her and her parents died. She had no family members left. It was only her and Bea in the world because everyone died. The floor was shaking faster.
